Glossary

Angel Investor Funding is a group of private equity investors looking for strong local companies (can be start-up's or early stage companies) to invest in and generate outstanding investment returns after a three to five year period.

Crowd Funding helps entrepreneurs fund small businesses with financing provided by the community. This method of funding is the collective effort of individuals or small groups who pool their resources in order to support the entrepreneurs' initiative. The pooling of resources for crowd funding is most often done via the internet. Crowd funding occurs for a variety of purposes, not just for the start-up entrepreneur. There are groups for disaster relief, non-profits, artists, political campaigns and journalism. Essentially, crowd funding is used to encompass the act of informally generating and distributing funds by groups of people for specific social, personal, entertainment or other purposes.

Social-Cause Crowd Funding is for entrepreneurs who are looking to create a positive change in the world. For many, crowd funding website can help provide financing and invaluable resources. This type of funding caters to for-profit and non-profit organizations.

Factoring is a financial transaction whereby a business sells its accounts receivable (i.e. invoices) to a third party (called a factor) at a discount exchange for immediate money with which to finance continued business.

- A factor company purchases your receivables by giving you an advance payment (usually 70-90% of total value of the receivables) up front.
- After charging a small fee (2% and up) the remaining balance is released upon full receipt of payment for all the receivables/invoices.

Hard money is asset based financing (real estate secured) and is available on most property types. The lender can be an institution or an individual. Typically, cash flow, credit scores and other traditional underwriting criteria are not a concern for Hard Money Lenders.

Securities Financing allows investors to borrow against their securities portfolio to create liquidity. While staying in the market, investors can enjoy the benefits of dual appreciable assets.
